the united states tradition of conserving fish wildlife habitats and cultural resources dates to the mid 19th century states have long sought to manage fish and wildlife species within their borders whereas many early federal conservation efforts focused on setting aside specific places as parks sanctuaries or reserves with advances in landscape ecology over the past quarter century conservation planners scientists and practitioners began to stress the importance of conservation efforts at the scale of landscapes and seascapes these larger areas were thought to harbor relatively large numbers of species that are likely to maintain population viability and sustain ecological processes and natural disturbance regimes often considered critical factors in conserving biodiversity by focusing conservation efforts at the level of whole ecosystems and landscape practitioners can better attempt to conserve the vast majority of species in a particular ecosystem successfully addressing the large scale interlinked problems associated with landscape degradation will necessitate a planning process that bridges different scientific disciplines and across sectors as well as an understanding of complexity uncertainty and the local context of conservation work the landscape approach aims to develop shared conservation priorities across jurisdictions and across many resources to create a single collaborative conservation effort that can meet stakeholder needs conservation of habitats species ecosystem services and cultural resources in the face of multiple stressors requires governance structures that can bridge the geographic and jurisdictional boundaries of the complex socio ecological systems in which landscape level conservation occurs the landscape conservation cooperatives lcc network was established to complement and add value to the many ongoing state tribal federal and nongovernmental efforts to address the challenge of conserving species habitats ecosystem services and cultural resources in the face of large scale and long term threats including climate change a review of the landscape conservation cooperatives evaluates the purpose goals and scientific merits of the lcc program within the context of similar programs and whether the program has resulted in measurable improvements in the health of fish wildlife and their habitats thesis m a from the year 2006 in the subject english language and literature studies literature grade 1 3 university of paderborn 205 entries in the bibliography language english abstract ever since mcewan s first publications his work has received considerable attention from critics and scholars thus it is not surprising that mcewan has been awarded with a number of prizes for his work and that he has been praised to be one of the leading representatives of the young generation despite the extraordinary praise of mcewan s work it has been discussed most controversially the fact that he often engages taboo subjects like masturbation incest regression child abuse dismemberment sadism masochism etc earned mcewan the reputation of an author who writes to shock his audience mcewan himself appears to be surprised about these attributions and objects them however it seems to be undisputable that the narrations are extremely shocking but it seems that not only the choice of topics is responsible for the extreme response to mcewan s narrations in my opinion the shock value of mcewan s narrations is mainly caused by his particular way to present these topics in keeping with this i consider the form of mcewan s narrations to be as important as their content mcewan seems to experiment with the employment of perspectives subjective perspectives in particular in fact it can be argued that he taps the full potential of the employment of subjective perspectives in his narrations as the reader is confronted with the subjectivity of perspectives on all levels of textual communication in my opinion mcewan s most outstanding accomplishment is his ability of depicting subjective perspectives in all consequence the absence of morality in many of mcewan s narrations for example which is usually regarded as an underlying topic can also be seen as a result of depicting consistently a specific subjective perspective therefore this paper will exa
